Children nationwide are now all back in school.

Too bad that classrooms in January will be vastly over-crowded and students not engaged because 25,000 teachers and aides, responsible for hundreds of thousands of children, would lose their jobs due to sequestration cuts.

In addition, 100,000 school children would lose places in Head Start which helps them begin school ready to learn.

Across-the-board cuts to domestic spending are NOT the answer!
